On September 30, 2019, I made contact with the complainant regarding her daughter in law having her vehicle for a period of time. The complainant told me the daughter in law lives with them and is allowed access to the vehicle. The complainant said the daughter in law had been gone with the vehicle for several days and that went against the agreement the complainant had with her. While speaking to the complainant the daughter in law made contact and said she would be home within the hour. I explained to the complainant because the daughter in law had permission to use the vehicle this would be a civil problem. I told the complainant it would be considered a breach of trust but no criminal action could be taken. The complainant understood and said she would call back if the daughter in law did not return when she said she would. No further action was taken.
